

Alexandra "Alex" Scott
January 18, 1996 – August 1, 2004

Alex's Lemonade Stand Foundation (ALSF) emerged from the front yard lemonade stand of 4-year-old Alex Scott, who was fighting cancer and wanted to raise money to find cures for all children with cancer. Her spirit and determination inspired others to support her cause, and when she passed away at the age of 8, she had raised $1 million.

Since then, the Foundation bearing her name has evolved into a national fundraising movement and is one of the leading funders of pediatric cancer research in the U.S. and Canada.

You Can Help!

Want to hold a lemonade stand or other fundraiser for ALSF? Here are three steps to get started:

1. Visit AlexsLemonade.org, click “Get Involved.”

2. Register your stand online and set up your fundraising page.

3. Hold your stand and have fun!
Mail in your donations or donate online to your fundraising page.

Where Does the Money Go?

ALSF funds the most promising research projects across North America looking for better treatments and cures for children with cancer. The money also supports programs for families such as Travel For Care and SuperSibs.
